

EASIER BREATHING AT CAPITAL

Over Result of First
Skirmish in State
Graft Cases

WILL NOT ABANDON FIGHT

Grand Jury and Committee Will Continue to Probe Into Suspicious Conditions.

Columbus, O., March 17.—Despoiled and robbed through theft and the absolutely frightful negligence on the part of public servants, the state of Ohio stands confronted by a juggled barrier of red tape and technicalities. On the other side are those for whom the hand of justice is extended. Twinning hands of precedent prevent the clutching fingers from closing.

This is the situation disclosed by the disagreement of the criminal jury yesterday afternoon in the case against former Public Printer Mark Slater, charged with presenting false vouchers to the state treasury.

Though the defendant offered no defense nor any explanation, the jury, after 21 hours of continuous session, were unable to decide whether he was guilty or innocent, and were discharged.

It is not known what caused those who stood for acquittal to cast their votes that way. The state's attorney is inclined to believe that it was the prejudice of some of them against granting immunity to Slater's confederate, J. E. Bresford.

Forgetting that it sometimes takes a crook to catch a crook, juries will disregard both the law and the facts and free the man in the net. Still, another hypothesis is that the failure of the state printing commission to properly safeguard the treasury relieves Slater of statutory liability.

If this is true, then the state has recourse only against former Auditor of State Walter D. Guilbert for accepting vouchers from one who had no authority to make them.

The action of the jury came as a blow to the members of the joint legislative committee, who have worked so diligently and so hard to clean the soiled public offices. They fear the result upon those who are hesitating between making known their guilt and keeping their lips sealed.

The fight will not be abandoned because of the outcome of the first skirmish. Slater will be pushed, and the grand jury and the committee will continue to probe into suspicious conditions at the capital. But there is easier breathing among those who live and have their being in an atmosphere of alarm lest their pecuniary state be made public and their shade heralded to the state.

In the General Assembly deep disquiet was expressed, and the general sentiment is that, if nothing else comes from this movement against graft, new laws can at least be framed to prevent future repetition of official plundering.

If the criminal law is inadequate there is comfort in the thought that the civil law remains, and that the state can recover the money of which it was wrongfully deprived. The criminal contest will be resumed next Monday if the effort is not blocked by the consummate skill of Slater's adroit counselor.

It was just 20 hours from the time of entering upon their deliberations that the jury was discharged. Judge E. R. Duffin, worn out by his vigil of the night before, remained at home for rest. Judge E. B. Kinkaid, associate of Judge Duffin, the trial court, at the request of the latter, summoned the jury a few minutes past 11 o'clock.

With tired looks upon their faces the 12 men filed into the room. After the call of the roll, Foreman Smith, upon an interrogation from Judge Kinkaid as to the prospects of arriving at a verdict, answered:

"It doesn't look that way, Your Honor."

"Well, gentlemen, if that is the case, you are discharged for the day, and from further deliberations upon this case," was the order of the court, and it will be so recorded.

Just how the jury stood during the deliberations is a matter of conjecture. Rumors were denied about that nine were for acquittal and three for conviction, and seven for acquittal and five for conviction. Any one who remained through the night, waiting for a verdict to be returned, can easily see with what small degree of truth these reports can be taken.

The nine-to-three position is brought about by the fact that nine of the men were never before on a jury, and the argument of Attorney Mathern, which is said to have been one of the strongest ever made in the courthouse, in years, convinced these novices, that Slater was innocent.

From an authoritative source it was learned that the jurymen pleaded themselves to secrecy. A close friend of one of them inquired as to how they

CHICAGO WELCOMES PRESIDENT

Greatest St. Patrick's Day
Celebration in History of City

Swarm of Plain Clothes and
Secret Service Men Mingle
With the Crowds.

Chicago, March 17.—At eight o'clock this morning the booming of 21 guns fired on the lake from gunboats to the citizens of Chicago that President Taft had arrived and that the greatest St. Patrick's day celebration in the history of the city was on.

Chicago is like a city transplanted from the Emerald Isle today. Everywhere houses and business blocks are decked with bright green bunting with here and there pictures of St. Patrick and President Taft side by side. When President Taft alighted from his private car he was greeted by a committee representing the Irish Fellowship club and by the entire Seventh Regiment of the Illinois National Guard, the Irish regiment, and escorted to his hotel in an automobile.

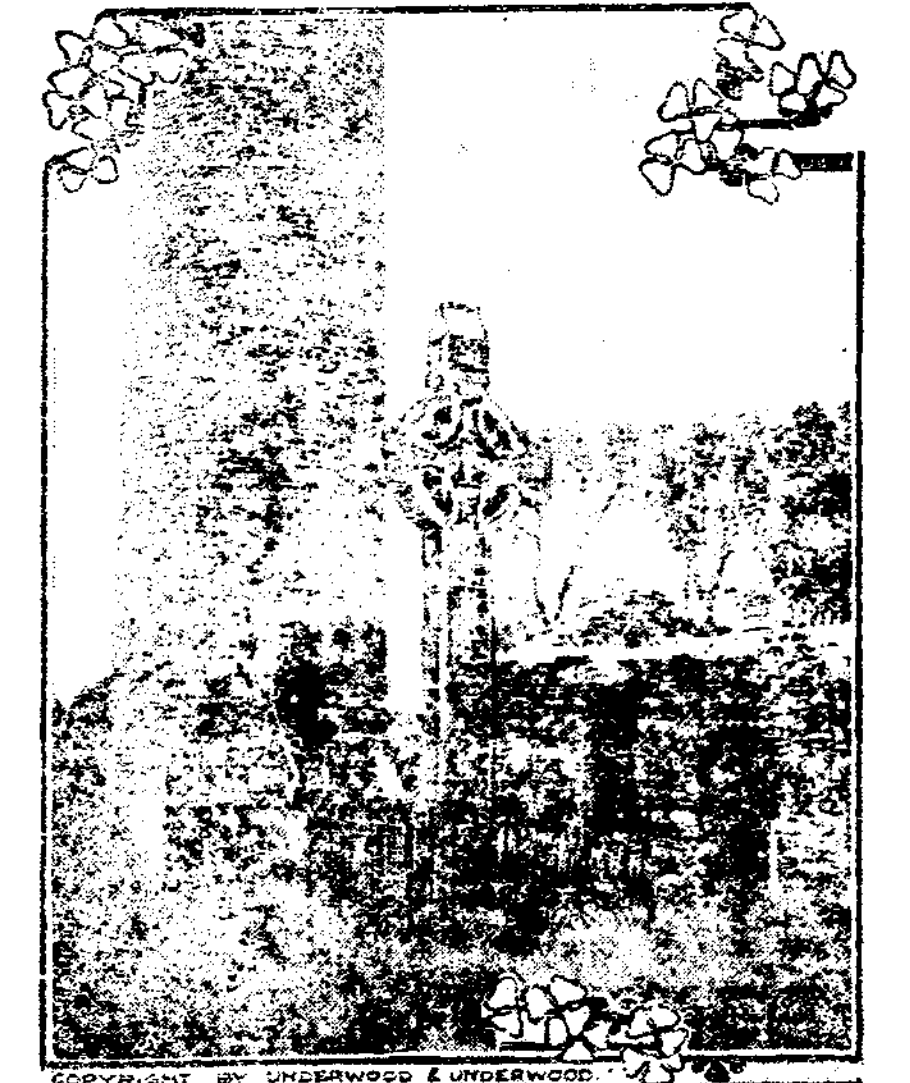

President Taft is spending one of the most strenuous days he has had in many months. At 10 o'clock the chief executive received the Chicago endowment committee of the American Red Cross society and an hour later received the newspaper men of Chicago at the Chicago newspaper club reception. The president addressed the press. Mr. Taft was not permitted to tarry long with the scribblers, however, and at noon made a quick visit to the Traffic club, following with a luncheon given by the Irish Fellowship club. After this luncheon the Irishmen relinquished control of the president's movement for a time and at 3 p. m. he attended a conservation mass meeting called to endorse the president's conservation policies. President Taft was the principal speaker. Receptions to members of various clubs will occupy the president's time from 4 p. m. until 6 p. m., at which

GOV. HARMON SENDS SPECIAL MESSAGE TO GENERAL ASSEMBLY ON SUBJECT OF LOBBYISTS

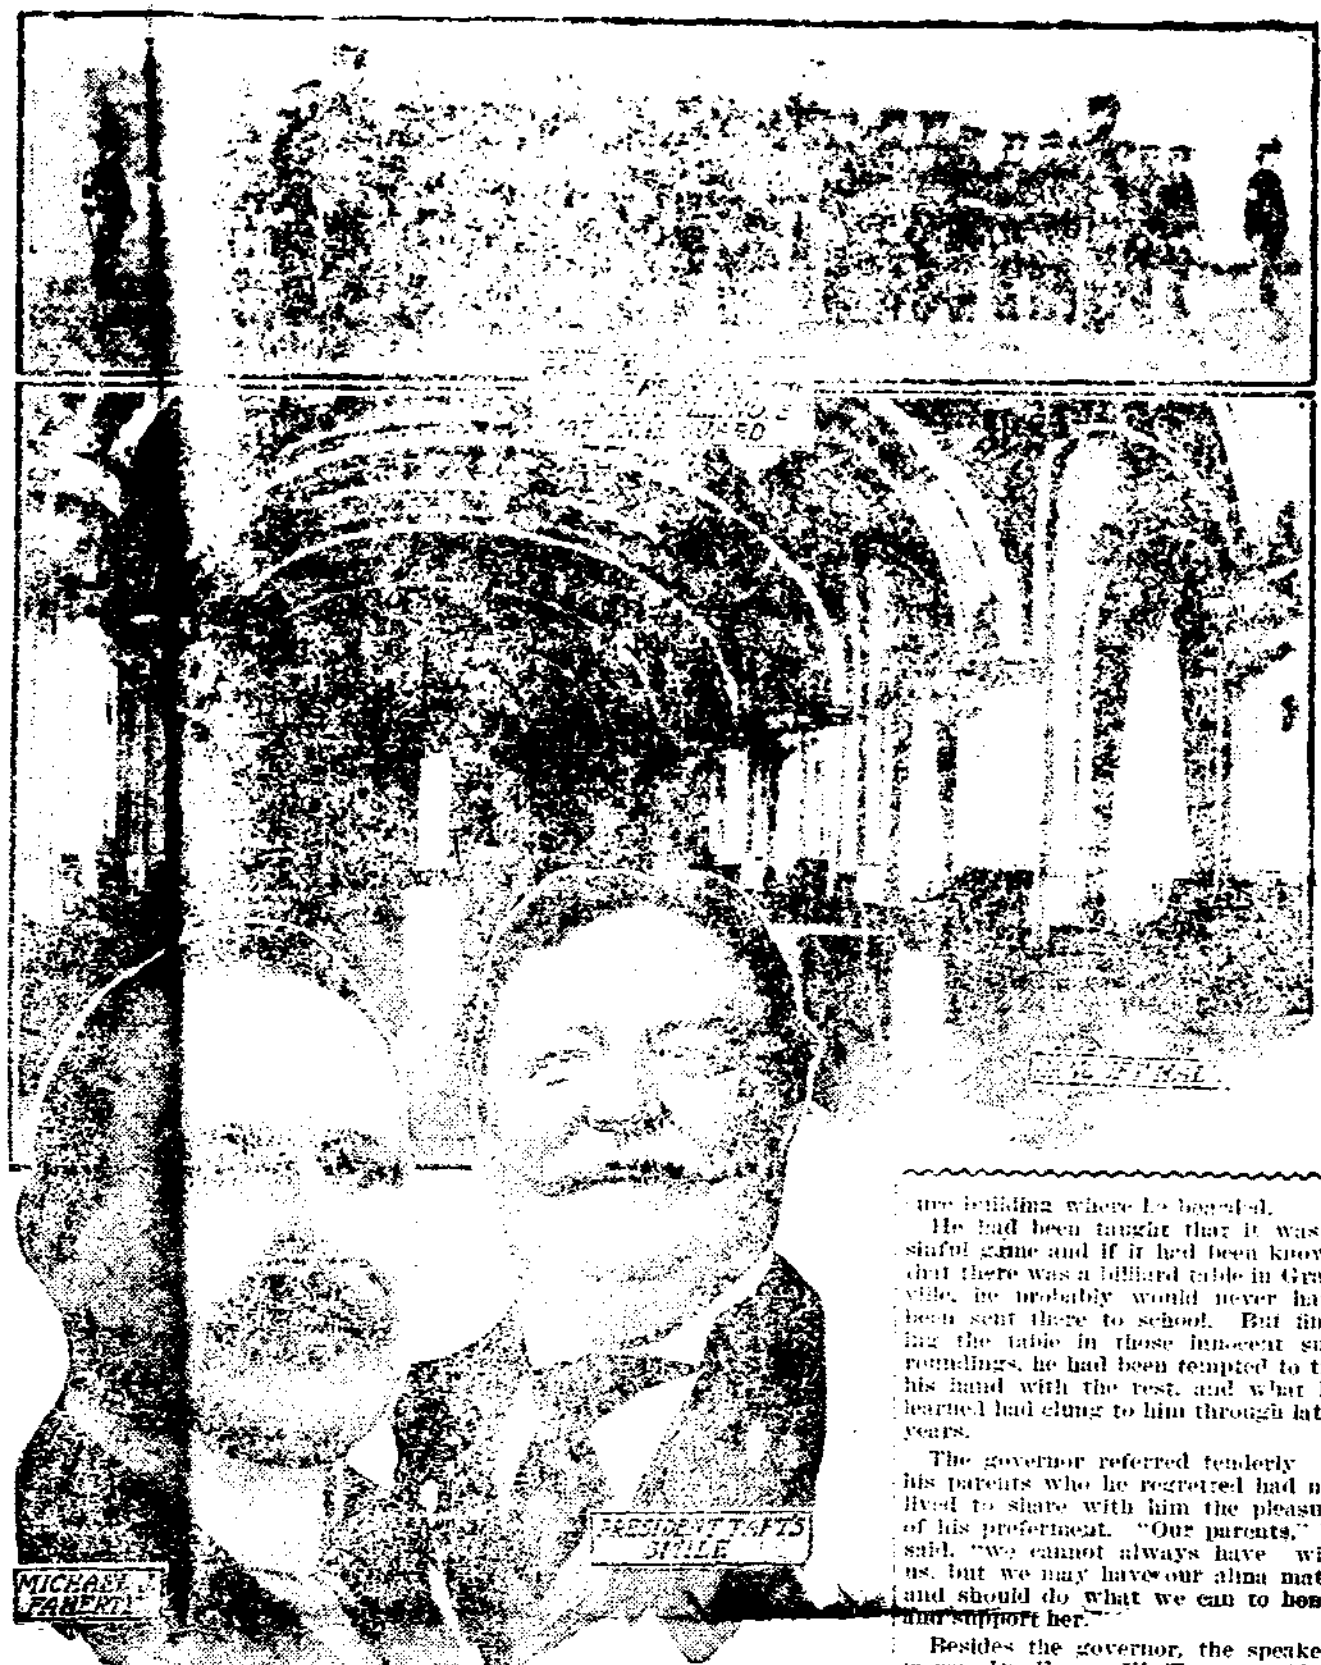

Columbus, O., March 17.—Governor Harmon sent a special message to the general assembly this afternoon on the subject of lobbyists. He advocated a law licensing lobbyists and compelling a provision that their names be disclosed.

ANCIENT IRISH ROUND TOWER AND CROSS.

The round towers of Ireland have been much discussed, and various unsatisfactory explanations have been offered for their appearance in the island in considerable numbers. They are evidently not bell towers and may have been used as watchtowers or places for the deposit of valuables in case of sudden attacks.

WARM WELCOME FOR PRESIDENT TAFT BY IRISH AMERICANS OF CHICAGO

Chicago, March 17.—St. Patrick's Day will be a happy day for the Irish Americans of Chicago. They will have for their guest the president of the nation and will show him all the warmth of Irish hospitality. He will stand on Irish soil, especially important for the occasion, and he will dine as the guest of the Irish Fellowship Club of the city in the big banquet hall of the La Salle Hotel. The master of the banquet will be Michael J. Flaherty, president of the club.

MINISTER KNOWLES WAS ASSAULTED BY GOVERNOR'S BROTHER

Washington, March 17.—Horace C. Knowles, minister of the United States to Santo Domingo, was assaulted while riding by a man named Castillo, a brother of the governor of the province, according to dispatches received at the state department today. The offender has been arrested and the authorities say he is mentally deranged. There are rumors that there is strong opposition to the present government of Santo Domingo.

SING PRAISES OF ROOSEVELT

London, March 17.—London is singing the praises of Theodore Roosevelt today as never before, as a result of his speeches at Khartoum yesterday, in which he praised British rule in Egypt, and pleaded with the young natives to carry on the work so well begun. In his speech he said that the British had done more good than armies and governments could do in the Sudan. His speeches will have a powerful effect in bringing about the restoration of a large part of the native population to confidence in the English generally.

GOVERNOR HARMON CENTER OF ELICITATIONS AT DINNER OF THE DENISON ALUMNI

Chicago, March 17.—Governor Harmon's first public appearance and reception since his arrival in Chicago was at a dinner given by the Denison Alumni Association at the Denison Hotel. The governor was the guest of honor and was warmly welcomed by the alumni. He spoke at length on the subject of the Denison school and the progress of the state. The dinner was a great success and the governor was highly complimented for his speech.

TAX BILL PASSED BY THE HOUSE

Received An Almost Unanimous Vote in Lower Branch

CINCINNATI FOUGHT IT

Opposition Unavailing and Measure Based Upon Harmon's Recommendation Will Become Law.

Columbus, O., March 17.—Without debate or hostile contention the bill to create a state tax commission was passed last evening by the house of representatives by what is practically a unanimous vote. Of the 103 members present but two were recorded in the negative.

Previous to the passage the author, Representative Lawrence K. Langdon, of Warren, made a detailed statement concerning the scope and aims of the bill and pleaded for its favorable consideration in an argument that won for him a host of congratulations.

It was a masterly presentation of a weighty subject, and, as was well said by Speaker Pro Tem Edgar Berr, it so thoroughly covered the ground that there was no opening left for any attack.

Both branches of the Assembly addressed themselves to this important business of taxation reform, the senate taking up the proposition to limit the levy in the state to 1 per cent upon assessed value.

The same determined opposition from Cincinnati was manifested and it was again made clear that the bill will be passed in that body.

Because of a parliamentary snarl it was laid over until today, when the proper and needful changes will be made and the bill then put upon its passage.

The house also will act upon the same question about the same hour. The Langdon bill, although no longer a party measure, was initially based upon the recommendation of Governor Judson Harmon that the present system of assessing and appraising lands constituted of state officials be abolished and their powers lodged with one central body, appointed with special reference to the duties of the office.

Defeated last year because of mistaken political motives, it was revived this session from both the Republican and Democratic sides. Originally drafted as a purely administrative measure, revolutionary changes were made in it because of the development of the fact that the excise tax laws were likely unconstitutional.

Among these changes were the incorporation of the so-called Nichols law of assessment and the fixing of excise taxes upon state rather than interstate receipts of the public service corporations.

The Nichols law plan requires the taking into consideration of the capitalization of all public service companies only.

The only material amendment in addition to this schedule was one providing that the real property of corporations should be valued by the state tax board instead of county auditors. It was also arranged that the collection of the taxes should be automatic.

The state commission was to ascertain the amount the state auditor was to charge; the state treasurer to collect them and the attorney general to sue for those remaining unpaid. The power to suspend was taken away and the requirement to assess a 50 per cent penalty was made absolute.

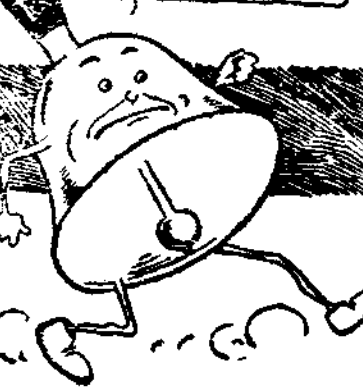

In his address Mr. Langdon went over the ground to point out the necessity for the bill, saying that all over the state quadrennial appraisals were fixing tentative values and waiting for the general assembly to provide that these wealthy corporations should be placed on the same plane as others.

The time has arrived to go back to rugged honesty in taxation matters. Under this bill there would be full publicity and no more star chamber sessions and remissions of taxes behind locked doors. The utility companies had withdrawn their objections to being compelled to keep their books as the state directed.

The attempt of the corporation to block the passage from under the excise tax law in retaliation for the proposed change he characterized as a "bit of polite blackmail," and he pointed out that these objectors were now paying on a valuation of from 25 to 30 per cent of their physical, and not real, value. Their bluff was before the lawmakers, and something had to be done for the state's revenues could not be permitted to rest upon rotten supports. No political motives should sway the members, for he believed that Gov. Harmon could appoint a safe and conservative commission that would deal fairly with the corporations and the people alike.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

How Tommy Tadpole Lost His Tail

JACK and Evelyn both said they wanted to hear a tale of a little tad. "Very well," said daddy, "then I'll tell you the tale of a tadpoles tale. "Little Tommy Tadpole lived in a pond. Tommy was only about an inch long and no bigger than Evelyn's little finger, but he was very lively and could swim like a fish. He was not happy, though, because the little fishes in the pond would play with him.

"You don't belong to our family," said Sammy Sundus. "You're not a fish." "What am I, then?" asked Tommy, looking at his tail with a swish-swish. "You're nothing but a tadpole now," Sammy Sundus told him, and I wish it said that you'd turn into something else, but I don't know what. You're a tadpole, you are."

"This made Tommy Tadpole feel sad, but he kept up his daily swimming and tried to make the best of it. After a time when he began to feel as if he was turning into something else, and when his little legs and feet grew out of his body he was worried about it. He also began to feel real hungry and wanted to jump instead of swim all the time.

"One day Sammy Sundus said to him, 'You begin to look like a tadpole now, Tommy Tadpole, and I really do believe you are.' 'Frogs don't have tails,' said Tommy. 'Fish don't have feet,' said Sammy Sundus. 'So I'm sure you're not a tadpole.'"

"Then Tommy made a jump for Sammy, clear out of the top of the water, but when he came down again, Tommy darted right at him and back of him, and bit off his tail. That made Tommy Tadpole feel mighty funny. He found he couldn't swim quite as well as he could before, so he gave another jump and landed right out on the bank. He blinked his eyes and sat there.

"A minute later Tommy saw a fly, and he made a jump at it, caught it and ate it. 'That,' he said, 'Now I know what I am. I am a frog just as Sammy Sundus thought!'

"After that he could swim just about as well as ever, and he could jump clear across the pond, and he liked to dive in now and then just to let Sammy Sundus know it wasn't so bad to be a frog after all. 'I'm glad you bit off my tail,' he said. 'I don't need it. See, I can swim as well as you without it!'

"So now his name is Henry Hopwood. He would have lost his tail anyhow and become a frog even if Sammy hadn't bitten it off. All tadpoles do. Hop off to bed now, tadpoles."

PLEASANT WORDS

Members of the Buckeye Press Association held their annual business meeting at Newark last week and were royally entertained by the hospitality and Board of Trade of that bustling city.

The attendance was unusually large and none of the many editors present had reason to complain of the treatment accorded them. There was entertainment galore and two of the big manufacturing plants for which Newark is famous—the A. H. Heiser glass plant and the E. H. Everett bottle works—were visited.

More than 2000 men are employed at the Everett plant alone. They make pretty near everything in Newark except beer, and they used to make lots of that before the days of the Rose county option law.

Affairs are gradually adjusting themselves to the changed conditions and the indications are that Newark is getting bigger and better than ever. The convention closed with a smoker at the Hotel Warden on Friday evening.

Among the distinguished guests were Gov. Harmon, State Printer Sullivan, Col. W. A. Taylor and Secretary of State Board of Agriculture Sandles.—Lucca Herald.

How Good News Spreads.
"I am 70 years old and travel most of the time," writes B. F. Tolson, of Elizabethtown, Ky. "Everywhere I go I recommend Electric Bitters because I owe my excellent health and vitality to them. They effect a cure every time. They never fail to tone the stomach, regulate the kidneys and bowels, stimulate the liver, invigorate the nerves and purify the blood. They work wonders for weak, run-down men and women, restoring strength, vigor and health in a daily dose. Try them. Only 50c Satisfaction is positively guaranteed by F. D. Hall."
